Law & Order

When Terror Fails

Terrorists threaten a public building, claiming to have placed a bomb that will go off in 3 hours. A frantic search reveals a horrible fact - some civilians report that there was an unattended suitcase but it is no longer there. Surveillance cameras show that it was taken by a well-known thief. Now, the PCs have to race against time to recover the suitcase before the deadline is reached.

The Matrix

These adventure seeds are based on the idea that there is a virtual reality of sorts.

Gold Farming

In a world that focuses on playing online games of all kinds, your online behaviour sometimes reflects back on your offline life. When disgruntled game addicts start paying hired killers to murder those who block their quest to supremacy by professionally looting all treasure in certain game worlds, the owner of a gold farming sweatshop hires the PCs to protect him and his workers by finding out who is paying the killers. Extensive research both within the virtual worlds and real life is required to stop this game gone bad. (Note: If you like to improvise a bit, let each player pick a single game world genre for the adventure.)

Horror

The Collector

One of the PCs deals in rare artefacts from all over the world, most of which are harmless but some of which are connected to the Elder Gods. The collector and his employees experience a series of adventures, each connected to a new aquisition.

The Great Explorer

Returning from an expedition to the Andes, the PCs unwittingly bring back an ancient horror. At the beginning of the adventure, strange problems will trouble the other members of the expedition and only after a while will they realized that they are the cause of trouble, leading to a great showdown using an artefact which they had from the very beginning.

The Evil Twins

The campaign begins with the PCs being arrested for a crime which they did not commit and their escape with the help of an enigmatic stranger. This rather open adventure allows the PCs to travel around the world hunting for their evil twins who have the intention to assassinate key leaders around the world.
